

Mrs. Asha Devi

Chetna's Mother

Asha Devi lives in Sitabari with two children and unhealthy husband. She is illiterate and a fruit seller by profession. She spends her entire income on treatment of her husband, survival of family, and on children education. Her daughter Chetna was one of the meritorious student in entire school. After passing VIII board examination in A+ grade, she moved to another school for further studies. Apart from school teachers, her mother (Asha Devi) played a pivotal role behind her success. Apparently, Asha Devi's is one of the alert mother who cares much about her children education. Her alertness can be understand by this when Chetna was waiting for her class VIII board result, Asha Devi was thinking to utilize the no study months (between board exam, result and admission in next class). Promptly she finds a computer institute and admitted Chetna to do a small computer course. Scarcely, she would have missed any PTM, parents gathering, function, event, parents association organized by school. Her daughter moved to another school but she still comes to school to meet teachers and discuss what she can do more for better education for her children. She usually ask ABF academic head to upgrade school up to senior secondary so that she can admit Chetna once again to ABF supported school as she feels that Chetna can get better education and guidance here. Now a days she spends lot on husband's treatment. Somehow she is managing the expense on Chetna's education in wait of better future.

"I never thought of anything except, one day Chetna will brighten my name in society"

Gandhi ji has said "There is no school equal to a decent home and no teacher equal to a virtuous parents" This quote stands true when we talk about Mrs. Asha Devi, mother of Chetna studied in one of the Abhiyan (Bharat) supported school (Jai Ambe Happy children school). Asha Devi's Adhar Card shows she was born in the year 1966 and yet she says she is not sure of her age.
