

Chetna Kumari, aged 16,

Alumni, Jai Ambey Happy Children School

Adarsh Vidya Mandir, Ambabari, Jaipur. Her parents (especially mother) gamely supporting her education by selling fruits. Chetna is eldest among siblings, and want to set good examples for her siblings through achieving good education. She was the best performer in her academics and continuing the same pace in new school after completing 8th from Abhiyan (Bharat) Project School. Along with other performances, her best part was that she maintained 100% attendance throughout the academics and she still maintains the same in her new school. Being a new student in her new school, she stood first in every test and she regarded as best student of the class. She tells that it happened due to support and confidence, which she got from her old teachers (Abhiyan Bharat Foundation Project School). She says, when Abhiyan Bharat started supporting, lot of new things added in the Academics of the school. She still misses her favorite teacher Sunita Sharma, Karadi Path English language programme, Annual function and weekly activities done on no bag day (every Saturday). Her mother is her idol and whenever she sees her mother bearing lot of responsibilities, her determination becomes stronger and wait for the day when she will earn and support her mother.

"I am very much inspired by my teachers who guided me not even in studies as well as in my personal life. I want to study and develop myself so that I could be a teacher and extend the learning to others"

She is one the students of Abhiyan (Bharat) Foundation supported schools who secured A+ grade in class VIII Board organized by Rajasthan State Education Board. Her parents are fruit seller. She respects the work of her parents but she wants to achieve others heights in her life. After passing class VIII, currently she is studying in class IX in
